

Interpreting Landscape in Various Media

A Zoom Workshop from Blue Mouse Studios lets the magic of Blue Mouse extend to your personal workspace.

Robynn Smith, Instructor

In this online workshop we will explore the form of landscape. Landscape is a physical terrain of experience, but it is also the backdrop of our lives. Our hopes and dreams for the future are set in landscapes, and our shelter in place view defines our present.

We will combine historical, technical and expressive attributes of the form, in media of your choice. You may choose drawing, painting, printmaking, collage or a combination of materials to interpret the landscape genre in an inspiring weekend of discussion, technique and personal content. Our goal will be to create two landscapes in two days, interpreting landscape in two ways.

Zoom allows us to learn together from the comfort and safety of our home studios. Technical instruction, interpretive discussion and focused critique will be featured.

Join me for a weekend of creativity and community!
